2005 FIRST PLACE

Wayne Jenski

LYCEUM
A traveling fellowship in Architecture
During high tide the beaches are no longer accessible to clean up. Instead of flying volunteers in and out every day a mobile camp can be formed by the Spill Mat's nitinol layer being activated by the cold ocean water.
Colony of lignite sponge mats for absorbing spilled oil on beach exposed by low tide